Asset Class Recap

After US equity markets, as measured by the S&P 500 Index, surged 16.0 percent in the first fiscal quarter, the second fiscal quarter saw US equities rise 4.3 percent. This brought overall performance since the start of the fiscal year to 21.0 percent. Headlines continued to revolve around the speed and magnitude of the Federal Open Market Committee's interest rate decreases in 2024. The overall run-up in equities coincided with volatility generally subsiding through March, as measured by the Chicago Board Options Exchange's CBOE Volatility Index (VIX). The VIX is generally referred to as the "fear gauge," and a higher reading generally signifies more investor uncertainty. Although much of the six-month period saw the VIX ebb around the 14 range, a spike in fear during mid-April coincided with the VIX jumping to 19.2 before subsiding to 15.7 to end the second fiscal quarter. After bonds experienced a rebound in the first fiscal quarter, as the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Unhedged Index increased 7.9 percent, the rate uncertainty in the second fiscal quarter resulted in a 3.2 percent decline. This brought bond performance since the start of the fiscal year down to a positive 4.4 percent. However, the merger-arbitrage asset class, as measured by the Credit Suisse Merger Arbitrage Liquid Index, had only increased 0.1 percent over the first fiscal quarter. Therefore, the greater than 0.5 percent detraction in the second fiscal quarter caused the asset class to be down 0.5 percent for the six-month period ended April 30, 2024. Mergers and acquisitions had faced a volatile 2023 primarily due to a FTC administration that has increased scrutiny of US mergers, geopolitical tensions between China and the US leading to increased concerns that Chinese regulatory approvals may be withheld for political reasons, and some high-profile failed deals in the banking sector. These concerns had not meaningfully abated as the new year commenced.

Allocation Review

The Fund primarily has exposure to a select group of merger deals. The Sub-Adviser evaluates each situation based upon its risk-reward profile using a probability-weighted basis. If the probability-weighted upside for a deal is substantial relative to the potential downside from the deal breaking, then the Sub-Adviser may add that as an opportunity for the Fund. The Fund continued to invest in both cash-only mergers and mergers where the acquirer's stock was also a consideration in the deal. Although the deal terms including just stock or just cash or a combination of stock and cash generally do not coincide with a larger spread on a merger deal, deals that include stock of the acquirer as part of the deal consideration generally necessitate shorting the acquirer's stock in order to effectively lock in the merger spread. In addition to merger arbitrage, the Fund had exposure to some share class arbitrage situations, where two share classes of stock from the same issuing company trade at a significantly wider spread than historical averages. The Sub-Adviser may use options to potentially manage the overall risk of the other holdings or to generate option premium income on the target companies that it also holds long. The use of derivatives, including covered call options did not have a meaningful impact on the Fund's performance during the fiscal quarter. However, the short positions in the acquirer's stock consideration in stock-for-stock mergers did have a material impact on performance.

Holdings Insights

A deal that detracted from performance during the first fiscal quarter was the all-cash acquisition of Albertsons Companies Inc. (ACI) (holding weight*: 6.92 percent) by the Kroger Co. (KR) (holding weight*: -1.97 percent). After the Washington State Attorney General filed a lawsuit against the deal, the shares dropped, resulting in a 1.7 percent loss during the first fiscal quarter. The second fiscal quarter saw the deal spread widen even further, as ACI declined another 3.3 percent. In addition, the Sub-Adviser added a short position in KR mid-March. KR increased approximately 0.7 percent since the short position was implemented, which detracted further from Fund performance. Overall, since the start of the fiscal year, ACI had declined 4.9 percent and the deal spread had widened to levels that the Sub-Adviser believes that there is more than enough compensation built-in for the risk it is taking remaining in the deal.

One of the largest contributors to Fund performance during the six-month period ended April 30, 2024 involved a deal that had a high amount of uncertainty regarding its prospects for a successful completion. The Fund had endured much of the volatility from the cash or stock acquisition of VMware LLC (VMW) (holding weight: 4.89 percent) by Broadcom, Inc. (AVGO) (holding weight: -3.19 percent). At the beginning of the fiscal year the spread when considering the stock terms was at 45.6 percent. However, the concerns regarding China approval finally ended when the deal successfully closed in late November 2023. This resulted in a substantial gain to the Fund as the wide spread on the deal contracted as the deal closed. From the beginning of the fiscal year through the deal close date in late November, AVGO rose 16.6 percent while VMW declined 2.2 percent. While these movements were adverse to the Fund, the sudden closing of the deal and related terms received resulted in a significant gain to the Fund.

A deal that broke in the first fiscal quarter remained as a position in the Fund in the second fiscal quarter. The stock-for-stock acquisition of Pioneer Natural Resources Company (PXD) (holding weight*: 7.96 percent) by Exxon Mobil Corp. (XOM) (holding weight*: -8.12 percent) saw the definitive merger agreement expire in January. However, in the second fiscal quarter PXD jumped 18.5 percent while XOM increased 16.1 percent, resulting in an overall gain to the Fund. When measured over the six-month period ended April 30, 2024, PXD increased 15.5 percent and XOM increased 13.8 percent, which still represented a positive overall gain to the Fund.

Sub-Adviser Outlook

Despite volatility in interest rates and the uncertainty that comes with the potential changes in administration due to the US presidential election, the Sub-Adviser continues to believe that the deal opportunity set remains robust. The Sub-Adviser continues to believe that spreads are generally providing adequate compensation for the risks presented with each deal as well as reflecting the significantly higher short-term interest rates. The Sub-Adviser anticipates that deal close rates may continue to be lower in the near-term due to slightly elevated political pressure on high-profile deals both in the US and abroad. However, it believes that there are plentiful deals that offer concessions above the risk that the Sub-Adviser assessed on the deal. Therefore, the Sub-Adviser believes that the reward for identifying successful deals, as well as deals that have a meaningful contraction from their currently significant spreads, continue to be ample. Regardless of the environment, the Sub-Adviser will continue its rigorous, bottom-up research process when selecting, monitoring, and potentially eliminating deals from the Fund.

Russell 1000 Value Index - The Russell 1000 Value Index is a subset of the Russell 1000 Index which measures the performance of the stocks of the 1000 largest companies in the Russell 3000 Index based on market capitalization. The Russell 1000 Value Index measures the performance of those Russell 1000 companies with lower price-to-book ratios and lower forecasted growth values.

Russell 2000 Growth Index - The Russell 2000 Growth Index measures the performance of the small cap growth segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 2000 companies with relatively higher price-to-book ratios, higher I/B/E/S forecast medium term (2 year) growth and higher sales per share historical growth (5 years).

Russell 2000 Index - The Russell 2000 Index is a small-cap stock market index that makes up the smallest 2,000 stocks in the Russell 3000 Index.

Russell 2000 Value Index - The Russell 2000 Value Index measures the performance of the small cap value segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 2000 companies with relatively lower price-to-book ratios, lower I/B/E/S forecast medium term (2 year) growth and lower sales per share historical growth (5 years).

Russell 3000 Growth Index - The Russell 3000 Growth Index measures the performance of those Russell 3000 Index companies with higher price-to-book ratios and higher forecasted growth values.

Russell 3000 Value Index - The Russell 3000 Value Index measures the performance of those Russell 3000 Index companies with lower price-to-book ratios and lower forecasted growth values.

S&P 500 Index - The S&P 500® is widely regarded as the best single gauge of large-cap U.S. equities and serves as the foundation for a wide range of investment products. The index includes 500 leading companies and captures approximately 80% coverage of available market capitalization.

S&P GSCI Dynamic Roll Index - The S&P GSCI Dynamic Roll Index is a dynamic rolling commodity futures index that employs a flexible monthly futures contract rolling strategy. It is designed to meet the demands of investors seeking to alleviate the negative impact of rolling into contango and potentially limit volatility exposure to the commodity market.

Shanghai Composite Index - The Shanghai Stock Exchange Composite Index is a capitalization-weighted index. The index tracks the daily price performance of all A-shares and B-shares listed on the Shanghai Stock Exchange. The index was developed on December 19, 1990 with a base value of 100. Index trade volume on Q is scaled down by a factor of 1000.

STOXX Europe 600 Index - The STOXX Europe 600 Index is derived from the STOXX Europe Total Market Index (TMI) and is a subset of the STOXX Global 1800 Index. With a fixed number of 600 components, the STOXX Europe 600 Index represents large, mid and small capitalization companies across 17 countries of the European region.

Taiwan TAIEX Index - The TWSE, or TAIEX, Index is capitalization-weighted index of all listed common shares traded on the Taiwan Stock Exchange. The index has a base value of 100 based on its 1966 level. The index is also known as the TSEC Index.

US Treasury Total Return Unhedged Index - The Bloomberg US Treasury Index measures US dollar-denominated, fixed-rate, nominal debt issued by the US Treasury. Treasury bills are excluded by the maturity constraint, but are part of a separate Short Treasury Index. STRIPS are excluded from the index because their inclusion would result in double-counting.

Past performance is no guarantee of future returns. All indices are unmanaged and measure common sectors of global asset markets. Securities in the indices do not match those in the Dunham Funds, and performance will differ. The Indices assume reinvestment of distributions and interest payments, and do not take into account brokerage fees and taxes.
