Asset Class Recap

Bond markets continued to edge higher as longer duration, high quality bonds outpaced short duration, higher risk credit bonds over the fiscal quarter. The 10-Year U.S. Treasury yield fell 40 basis points, beginning May at 1.62 percent and closing out July at 1.22 percent. The fall in rates could be a result of the uneven economic data received throughout the fiscal quarter, as weaker than expected jobs growth, coupled with continuing jobless claims weighed on rates. The Federal Reserve met twice over the fiscal quarter during their periodical Federal Open Market Committee meetings, with the outcome of both meetings remaining the same; the rise in inflation is likely transitory, and the economy still has room to run. As a result, the policy rate remained unchanged and the bond-buying program remained intact. Another potential explanation for the drop in rates could be the recent rise in COVID cases, specifically related to the delta variant. Volatility entered the markets in the latter half of the quarter as the highly contagious delta variant spread throughout Asia and Europe, before making its way to the U.S. With potential lockdowns on the horizon, industries that struggled at the onset of the COVID pandemic, such as airlines, cruise operators, and travel agencies, sold-off again. Over the fiscal quarter, investment-grade corporate bonds, as measured by the ICE BofA U.S. Corporate Index, added 3.6 percent, while high-yield bonds, as measured by the ICE BofA U.S. Cash Pay High Yield Index, rose 2.0 percent. Fundamentals remain attractive for corporate bonds, as sales and earnings growth are expected to rise at a higher than historical average pace. In the government bond market, Treasury and government agency bonds, as represented by the ICE BofA U.S. Treasury & Agency Index, increased 2.5 percent. Over the fiscal quarter, the yield curve flattened as long-term yields declined, while short-term yields rose. Longer-term yield declined as uncertainty related to the COVID delta variant and its effect on the global economy loomed large. Over the most recent fiscal quarter ending July 31, 2021, the Bloomberg Barclays Aggregate Bond Index rose 2.2 percent.

Allocation Review

Nearly two-thirds of broad U.S. investment-grade bonds in the benchmark index are represented by Treasury and government agency bonds. Therefore, most of the performance of the benchmark index is dictated by how those U.S. government-related bonds perform, and far less is dependent on the performance of corporate bonds and non-agency mortgage-backed securities. Treasury and government agency bonds rose 2.5 percent, as mentioned earlier. The longer-end of the yield curve fell, leading to an increase in prices in longer-dated securities. Government bonds comprised 20.8 percent of the Fund, well below the 37.6 percent in the benchmark. Despite the underweight allocation, government bonds helped relative performance as having an overweight exposure to the longer-end of the yield curve contributed. Another contributor on the quarter came from high-yield bonds, which gained 2.0 percent on the period. Having an overweight allocation, while the benchmark had no exposure to high-yield, positively contributed to relative performance. The largest detractor during the fiscal quarter came from the underweight allocation to investment-grade corporate bonds. While investment-grade corporate bonds rose 3.8 percent over the fiscal quarter, the Fund's 5.4 relative underweight allocation, coupled with poor issuer selection, detracted from performance. Despite the relative underperformance, investment-grade corporate bonds added to absolute performance.

Holdings Insights

The largest contributor over the fiscal quarter came from the municipal bond sector, San Diego County California Regional Airport Authority 5.59% Due 07/01/2043 (79742GAF8) (holding weight*: 0.40 percent). The San Diego Regional Airport Authority bond benefitted from the broader airlines industry rebounding significantly, with air travel picking up as COVID cases decreased and the dissemination of COVID vaccines increased. Additionally, the bond's longer duration contributed to performance in a market environment where long duration bonds were rewarded. Over the fiscal quarter, the San Diego Regional Airport Authority bond increased 8.6 percent. Another contributor came from the high-yield bond sector, Gateway Casinos & Entertainment Limited 8.25% Due 03/01/2024 (36760BAE9) (holding weight*: 0.05 percent). Similar to the San Diego Regional Airport Authority bond, the Gateway Casinos & Entertainment bond rallied as a result of the economic re-opening. Gateway's casinos in the British Columbia and Ontario regions recently opened as Canada lifted restrictions for the gaming industry. Despite initial capacity limitations, the demand for gaming has been significant, and if the U.S. gaming market is any indication of what's to come in Canadian markets, then Gateway Casinos & Entertainment is poised to thrive going forward. Over the fiscal quarter, the Gateway Casinos & Entertainment bond gained 7.3 percent. Within the investment-grade corporate bond sector, the largest contributor was Bank of America Corporation 2.687% Due 04/22/2032 (06051GJT7) (holding weight*: 0.87 percent). The Bank of America bond is the largest bond within the investment-grade corporate bond sector of the Fund and happened to be the largest contributor within the sector. The bond gained 3.4 percent, primarily from its long duration, which outperformed short duration this fiscal quarter.

The largest detractors over the fiscal quarter came from the high-yield sector. The largest of which was Telesat LLC, which had two bonds, Telesat LLC 5.63% Due 11/06/2026 (87952VAR7) (holding weight*: 0.06 percent) and Telesat LLC 6.5% Due 10/15/2027 (87952VAM8) (holding weight*: 0.08 percent), that detracted from Fund performance. Telesat is one of the largest global satellite operators that provides broadband connectivity and technical consultation services. Telesat management decided to add a very expensive new satellite constellation, in turn increasing their leverage into the teens. Other outstanding debt sold-off as a result of the announcement. Furthermore, a competitor in the satellite industry launched their own constellation into orbit, which the Sub-Adviser believes will put pressure on pricing in the future. The Sub-Adviser is currently evaluating their position in Telesat based on these recent events. Over the fiscal quarter, the Telesat LLC 5.63% Due 12/06/2026 bond and the Telesat LLC 6.5% Due 10/15/2027 fell 5.8 percent and 13.4 percent, respectively. Within the investment-grade corporate bond sector, the largest detractor was Sabine Pass Liquefaction LLC 6.25% Due 03/15/2022 (785592AH9) (holding weight*: 0.11 percent). The Sabine Pass Liquefaction bond lost value, as short duration bonds lagged longer duration peers. Over the fiscal quarter, the Sabine Pass Liquefaction bond fell 1.4 percent.

Sub-Adviser Outlook

The Sub-Adviser believes that the backdrop for fixed income should remain positive, as the economy is expected to grow at an above average pace, while unemployment continues to decrease, consumer spending increases, and corporate earnings remain strong. Remarks from Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell and other officials on the Federal Open Market Committee will be worth monitoring as well, as investors monitor the Federal Reserve's stance on inflation moving forward. Furthermore, the Sub-Adviser will look to how policymakers, both domestically and abroad, react to the recent rise in COVID cases, and how this could shape economic policy in the future. While spreads appear to be tight across many asset classes, issuer selection and sector allocation will be imperative in the months ahead.
